Encounters: New Art from Old Richard Morphet

Edited by Richard Morphet
Introductory essay by Robert Rosenblum
Contributory essays by Judith Bumpus, Marco Livingstone, Keith Hartley, and Andrew Lambirth
As part of its millennium celebrations, the National Gallery, London has invited more than twenty major contemporary artists to create a new work in response to a painting in the Gallery's collection. This extraordinary book presents the diverse new works alongside the paintings that inspired them, and, based on extensive interviews with the artists, it discusses the relations between the new creations and the art of the past. Copublished with the National Gallery, London
